DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES

SWAGAR SHERLEY,
For Congress.

SHACKLEFORD MILLER,
For Appellate Judge

DON'T FORGET.

We can not impress too strongly upon the minds of the Democrats of Jefferson county the fact that we are to elect a Congressman and Appellate Judge in this district at the coming November election. This is a matter of very great importance, and all Democrats should take a deep interest in the matter. We believe Jefferson county can be relied upon to give a larger Democratic majority than usual. But we should not be satisfied even with this. Let all Democrats get together, pull together and work together, and give our nominees the largest majority ever before given.

IRELAND'S STRUGGLE.

The Irish Standard of Minneapolis take a conservative view of the issues that confront the Irish party and the fight they are making. Parliament will meet the fifteenth of next month and the struggle for home rule will then be resumed in earnest. The Standard expresses the opinion that the Nationalists will again enter the battle equipped in every detail but bearing no flag of truce.

Not for many years has the Irish cause stood in such a critical condition and not for many years has the hope of victory been based on such a logical foundation. Conditions are favorable within and without and there seems to be no reason for restlessness or fear. Factionalism is at low tide in Ireland. The Irish party is the party of the people and behind it the people will stand in the coming struggle. On the other hand, the Tories are showing signs of weakness. There is dissension among them on many policies, all of which is to the advantage of the Irish Nationalists. Democracy in England is growing more vigorous and there is little danger that the Liberals will alter their position on the veto of the House of Lords. This means further hope for the Irish cause. But the reason which has the greatest force of all is derived from the splendid success which the Irish envoys are meeting with in this country. In Buffalo, New York City, Boston, Chicago—everywhere they go—the representatives of Ireland are receiving the heartiest encouragement. The funds that are pouring in are surpassing the highest expectations. And surely nothing could be more reassuring to the leaders in the struggle for home rule than to know that Irish America commends their past efforts, has absolute confidence in them, and is with them heart and soul in the crisis which they are now facing. This enthusiastic support on the part of Irish America will serve to knit the people of Ireland together into an even more compact unit, and when an election comes the result will be for the good of the Nationalist party. There is another consideration which brightens the hope of the Irish party in the coming struggle: The war chest is well filled. The contributions received from America have gone far toward swelling the available fund for the work that is to be done now.

The world is interested in the coming struggle. It is a contest of right against an old and unjust institution which an enlightened people will not tolerate much longer. The spirit of democracy is sweeping through England, Scotland and Wales, and whatever changes come home rule for Ireland will be the first. Everything considered the Irish party stands to win.

DON'T LIKE NAME.

For many years our American Episcopalians have been restive under their historical designation, "Protestant." It has suggested a lack of serenity, says the Milwaukee Citizen, an inharmorous disposition and an eruptive possibility, not at all accordant with soft carpets, dim religious light and glowing altars. They would therefore gently erase it from the scroll and substitute "Catholic" or "American Catholic," or better still, "Holy Catholic." Last week the church met at Cincinnati in general convention, sixty-three dioceses being represented. The motion to wipe "Protestant" off the ecclesiastical slate and substitute "Holy Catholic" came within one vote of passing. A majority of the clergy voting "aye," but the laity were so closely divided that the change did not quite carry.

Encouraged by the closeness of the vote, the leading advocates of change of name declared that they would use all their influence between now and the time of electing deputies to the next general convention in the effort to have such deputies chosen as are favorable to the change. Rev. Carl E. Grammer, rector of St. Stephen's church, Philadelphia, was the chief speaker in opposition to the change.

"No scholar with any respect for his scholarship nor any student who has respect for his language could favor the name proposed," he said. "It would put us in a ludicrous position, from which we would be obliged to recede, if we advertised ourselves as being that part of the Holy Catholic church 'known as' the Episcopal church. It would seem to foreigners as though we were traveling under an alias." And natives would be sure you were.

The gentlemen who arranged for the reception of Hon. Joseph Devlin are entitled to the thanks of all friends of the Irish cause. All did their part well, and where there were so many it would be invidious to particularize. The result shows that Louisville is not behind any of her sister cities when appealed to for a worthy cause.

The Herald has repudiated its charges against Jailer John R. Pflanz and humbly apologizes to that gentleman. The Herald knew at the time, and knows now, that Jailer Pflanz has a record second to none and equal to that of any official who ever served the city, county or State.

The anti-Whallen cry of the Post and Herald will not save McGee and Bingham. The people are awake to their interests and will not be misled, and it is safe to say that with an orderly election Sherley and Miller will win by a tremendous majority.

Unbiased observers everywhere see only revolt against the Republican party and victory for the Democrats.

HOSTILITY Waning.

According to London dispatches the idea of home rule all round as the first step toward the realization of a Federal empire appears likely to become a working policy. The fact that the London Times has just published a series of articles advocating a compromise, urging that the situation is quite changed since the "bloody eighties" and that the Unionists might now with dignity acquiesce in, although they could not initiate, a policy of home rule, shows how Unionist hostility toward home rule is waning.

It is the season of furs, velvets and plushes galore.

LAID TO REST.

The entire community extends sympathy to the bereaved wife and sons and daughters of John Godfrey in the death of a loving husband, kind father and good citizen, who departed this life Monday after a lingering illness at the age of sixty-five years. Mr. Godfrey was a native of Ireland, but had lived in this city the greater part of his life. For many years he conducted a successful grocery business at Seventh and Twelfth, from which he retired on account of ill-health. Besides his wife two sons and two daughters survive him. The funeral took place Wednesday morning from St. Louis Bertrand's church, where a solemn mass of requiem was celebrated for the repose of his soul.

William Callaghan, delegate to the Catholic Federation, invited the members of Division 4 to be present at the next meeting of the Federation, when Bishop O'Donoghue will be their guest. The division made arrangements to give a series of euchres in the near future and President Hennessy appointed William Callaghan, John J. Barry, S. J. McElliott, Thomas Downey and Thomas Langan as a committee of arrangements. Bertrand Reilly, a son of Assistant Financial Secretary Dave Reilly, was obligated and promised to help his father on the stage team. BROKE UP PARTY.

Judge Nicholas Longworth, who used to sit on Ohio's Supreme Bench, looked unnaturally grave, and a neighbor, in recognition of his facial depression, named a pet owl "Judge Longworth." Memphis Knights are enthusiastic over the prospect of the greatest initiation tomorrow that has ever taken place there.

The council at Galena, Ill., has now one of the finest rooms in the city, besides large parlor, pool room and kitchen.

It is the intention of the Indianapolis Knights to spend $30,000 in the erection of their building, which will be six stories high.

The first opening at the beautiful new club house at Milwaukee took place last Saturday, with a reception for the ladies in the afternoon and a smoker for the members in the evening.

In the Boston Columbus day parade there were ninety-eight bands, 2,500 musicians, fifteen floats, 50,000 paraders and 500,000 spectators, or nearly the equivalent of four-fifths of the city's population.

GERMANY.

Catholic Church Never So Strong in Fatherland as Now.

Father Phelan, of the Western Watchman, who is now on his way home to St. Louis from Europe, writes as follows concerning the present religious conditions in Germany, the original home of the so-called Reformation:

"It must be a comfort to the Catholics of Germany to see the movement against Christ and his church, inaugurated 400 years ago, brought to an ignominious end. For there is no longer any war against the church in the land that produced the Reformation. A sturdier Catholicism has grown up in the soil enriched by the decayed weeds of the Lutheran heresy. The church was never so strong in the Fatherland as now. Catholics seem to have received a new infusion of the spirit of God in all the German lands. The conquering spirit of Catholicity is carrying all before it. This is apparent in the increasing attendance at all the church's services; but more especially in the spirit and work of the Catholic press. It is coming to be recognized as an axiom that in Germany, as everywhere else, that Catholicity and religion are convertible terms; and the church is synonymous with Christianity. The Catholic church still holds the hearts of the people, and Catholic truth still dominates all intelligent thinking minds. Against the Free Christian Congress of Berlin we have to oppose the grand Eucharistic Congress of Montreal. What a contrast! What a lesson Christian faith!"

LILLIAN IS SEVERE.

Lillian Russell, appearing at Macauley's, is hard on her American sisters. American women, she declares, are the biggest chumps in the world when it comes to buying gowns. They are the laughing-stock of the Paris modistes, who sell them all kinds of freaks and bizarre effects. There is no such thing as style. A well dressed woman wears what becomes her, regardless of the passing vogue. Every woman should set her own styles. Women spend too much on dress. A few good gowns are worth a trunkful of shoddy freaks. A dress should be worn until it begins to look its age. A dress that is fit to wear once is fit to wear on any number of occasions. American women want too many costumes. Women love to dress because they love to control and boss men. But American women are learning. In a few years they will be the best dressed women in the world. The American woman has sense, and her artistic taste is developing rapidly. A woman is a chump if she doesn't dress the best that she can without being extravagant. In the first place, there is no law governing the style of women's clothes. A woman should wear what she looks best in. She should first select colors that suit her complexion and figure. Then she should have the goods made up so that it will bring out her best lines and make her appear graceful. Women go crazy over what they call the styles. I repeat there is no such thing as style. A woman should be a law unto herself, and if she lacks the taste to choose her frocks she should get an artistic dressmaker to do it for her.

KEEP YOUR SCREENS.

This is the season of typhoid fever, a disease which without doubt is carried from one person to another by flies. Run no risks; the danger is real. Fight flies and if there is typhoid fever in your neighborhood, cook all food that could by any chance have been contaminated. Do not take off your screens too early. Wait until the last fly has disappeared. And do not let stray flies find refuge for the winter in warm corners of your house. Experiments recently made at Cambridge University prove that flies occasionally breed during the winter and that the flies that begin life in the cold weather are very long-lived; they survive and flourish under conditions that would put an end to the lives of summer-born flies.

The short jacket has the present call and is likely to continue in favor for some time to come.
